

The choice is yours

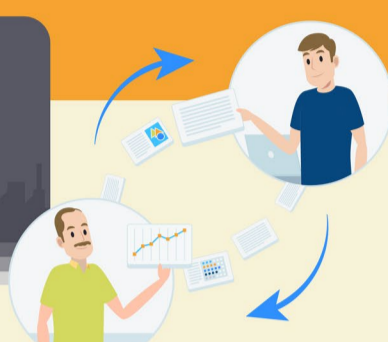

Give your business the flexibility to work where, when, and how you need to

Power up your mobile workforce

Now more than ever businesses need to be able to support a remote workforce. Whether driven by macro conditions or individual business requirements, working remotely is the new norm. As of March 2020, eighty-eight percent of organizations have encouraged or required employees to work from home.¹

With this new norm comes a new set of IT and business requirements to maintain a productive, engaged workforce. Simply shifting your in-office IT approach to beyond the perimeter of the building won't cut it. A more complete change is needed that gives employees a choice in where, when, and how they work.

*"24 percent of workers say they would be more likely to be happy and productive if they worked remotely"*²

1. Choices in where to work

Business and emergency continuity planning

With our digital workspace services, business continuity planning and the ability to react to a changing business environment is second nature to us. Our workforce solutions run in the cloud, so we can easily expand your current deployment or rapidly start a service with us.

Remote work by nature is location independent, employees are not tethered to a particular physical space. All that is really needed is a device and an internet connection.

Our Citrix-powered services connect you to business desktops, apps, and data from any location.

There are no VPNs, and only one single sign-on (SSO) login.

When switching networks, your session reconnects automatically when service is restored. There is no need to switch tasks, no loss in productivity— just pick up where you left off.

2. Choices in when to work

Remote work is the new norm, happening anywhere at any time. Giving your employees choice allows them to work throughout the day, evening, or night as they see fit. They may need to put in a few hours on the weekend, after dinner, or prepare for a presentation before dawn when they concentrate best.

*"26 percent of work is done outside of normal working hours."*³

It's easy to provide a flexible work environment to your employees with our digital workspace services. Log in once to the workspace on any device, and get to work. Intelligent features help organize, guide, and automate work—like personalized workflows that make completing simple work tasks easy. Submit a paid time off (PTO) request, review a work order, or approve expense reports in one click. It's that simple.

3. Choices in how to work

Transitioning your office employees to remote work with our solutions does not require you to buy and setup additional expensive hardware or purchase laptops for everyone—your employees use what they already own and prefer. The virtual apps and desktops are accessed remotely via the cloud from any device.

*"Remote workers are productive 10 minutes more per day, and work 1.4 days more per month than their office counterparts."*⁴

Your new, remote workforce can now work from anywhere, at any time, on any device. They may start the day in bed, reading emails with a hot cup of coffee. They may finish a report mid-morning on a PC, and then attend a virtual meeting on their cell phone in the car. They may end the day collaborating on a presentation with Microsoft Teams on a laptop propped up on the couch. Work gets done regardless of how it's completed.

*"52 percent of millennials want better work-life balance."*⁵
